

Technology Tools, Social Networking, and Elementary School Kids: Making Sense of It All

Please join us for an informative session on technology tools and social networking and its place in our children's lives. We will review common "tech" tools our children are using, define social networking, visit the places where our children "hang out" online and explore the trend of cyber bullying. We will discuss the pros and cons of the tools children use to stay connected with their family and friends. We'll also discuss how these new and exciting social networks may be used responsibly and often times irresponsibly. We'll also review ways in which parents can have a part in monitoring these tools and networks and to help protect their kids from social networking's negative side.

Leading the discussion will be Lisa Lukens, Teacher on Assignment for Technology (K-12) for T/E School District and a parent in the District. For twelve years, she has supported technology initiatives for all K-12 staff and students. She will shed some light on our students' online activity and how we as parents can understand social trends a little bit better and how to become involved. Additionally, she is a mother of a six, four, and two-year-old and looks forward to heading into this online world with them!
